

tution and laws, to wit: "I, A. B., appointed weigher of grain in the city of Baltimore, do swear that I will diligently and carefully weigh all grain that I shall be called upon to weigh, and that I will not receive during the time I hold the office of weigher-general or weigher of grain, any fee or reward from anyone, directly or indirectly, for the discharge of my duty, and that I will not buy or sell any grain, or act as agent for anyone, or assist in the buying, selling or consigning any grain for anyone during the time I shall hold the said office; and in every other respect, fairly and honestly, without prejudice or partiality, will discharge all the duties of weigher-general or weigher of grain, to the best of my skill and judgment, so help me God."

1872, ch. 244.

447. The weigher-general, before he enters upon the discharge of the duties of his office shall give bond to the State of Maryland, with two securities, to be approved by the comptroller, in the penalty of ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties imposed upon him by law.

Ibid

448. Each assistant weigher shall give bond to the State, with two securities, to be approved by the comptroller, in the penalty of five thousand dollars, with a like condition as the bond of the weigher-general.

Ibid.

449. In the event of failure to perform any duties assigned the said weighers by this sub-title of this article, the said bond may be put in suit, by order of the comptroller, for the benefit of the State, and judgment rendered thereon as on other official bonds.

Ibid.

450. All grain arriving in the city of Baltimore must be reported to the grain weighers' office, whether by steamers, sail vessels of all descriptions, barges or canal boats; and it shall be the duty of the weigher-general of grain to have weighed all grain carried to said city for sale, except grain carried to the city on wagons, carts, railroad cars or through elevators; provided,
